What Good Is a B.A. or B.S.?

You know, my friend graduated with a B.A. last year, and he still hasn't found a job. So why am I here doing undergraduate studies? What good is a B.A. or B.S.?

That's a good question! Nowadays "everybody" has a bachelor's degree, right? And a B.A. or B.S. isn't a professional degree; it doesn't prepare you for a specific job. So why get a bachelor's degree?

Many employers can tell you why. People who spent three years or more at university attending courses, doing assignments, and passing exams have demonstrated that they have discipline, can organize their time, and can think. People who participated in extracurricular activities also demonstrated that they're team workers and have good communication skills. These are exactly the qualities that employers want.

Think about it: Getting a B.A. or B.S. will help you develop as a person, you'll earn more money than most people without a degree, and you'll have the option of going on to higher university degrees. At the same time, undergraduate studies will help you develop skills that employers value.

So, what will differentiate you from all the other people with a B.A. or B.S.? The answer is clear: very good discipline, time management, critical thinking, team work, and communication skills. Now is the time to concentrate on developing these abilities, so make use of your undergraduate years to do so. It all depends on you!

STORY of the Month

A Place Without any Challenges!

Once there lived a busy Doctor called Dr. Sam. He was busy not because of his skill as a Doctor but due to his talent in handling his patience. It was about 10:30 pm when Dr. Sam was about to leave his clinic. Suddenly a patient came running to the doctor's room. Dr. Sam asked him what his problem was. The patient said, "Dr. Sam, I have a great regard for you. Now all I require is a straight forward answer for my question". "What is your question?" asked Dr. Sam. He replied, "I wanted to know whether there is any place on earth where there are no challenges?" Dr. Sam asked him why he was asking it. The patient replied that he wanted to be in that place.

Dr. Sam said that it was too late and asked him to come to his house early in the morning by 7:00 am and he promised him that he would take him to the place. The patient went home and was wondering where the doctor would be taking him the next day. He never slept for the night and was waiting for the sunrise. Then he visited the doctor's residence by 7:00 am, where the doctor was waiting for him. Then both of them walked down to the nearest taxi stand and took a taxi.

It took about one hour of drive from the place and they reached the place. It was a big area with a high-raised walls and the entrance had a big gate. The patient was wondering and started thinking whether Dr. Sam had gone mad or not. Yes, Dr. Sam had brought the patient to the cemetery. And Dr. Sam got down from the taxi and said, "from my experience, this is the only place without any challenges".

Moral of the story: 1) Overcoming challenges are part of the life (not only for you, but for everyone). 2) Challenges make you strong and stable. 3) It is only when you have challenges, you are alive.

Tips of the Month

Handling Procrastination

By Ethan Beh... Retrieved from: http://EzineArticles.com/?expert=Ethan_Beh

Do you procrastinate? There are times when we just don't feel like doing anything at all. All of us have experienced it before. The difference between successful people and less successful people is their ability to handle procrastination successfully and get themselves to take action right away.

Here are some tips to help you fight procrastination.

1. ALWAYS SET GOALS & SCHEDULES.
2. REMOVE DISTRACTIONS.
3. GET IN A STRONG STATE.
4. DO THE SMALL TASKS FIRST.
5. BE ORGANIZED.

When things are organized, the task will seem less daunting. Instead of just vaguely knowing that you have a bunch of things to do, when you're organized you will know exactly what needs to be done. One of the reasons we procrastinate is when we feel the task is too overwhelming or difficult. By removing this vagueness, we can clearly see what we're dealing with and this makes it easier to handle.

BOOK of the Month

Corporate Integrity: Rethinking Organizational Ethics and Leadership

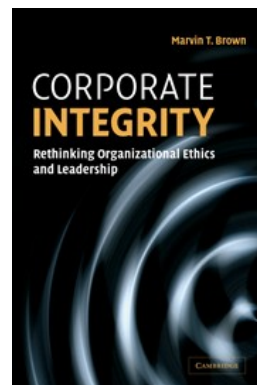

Author: Marvin T. Brown

"An innovative and important book developing corporate integrity as a complex concept with a number of overlapping meanings. This systems approach to thinking about corporations and their roles in civil society is a unique contribution to the field of business ethics and will make a lasting contribution to this scholarship."

[Patricia Werhane, Wicklender Chair of Business Ethics and Director of the Institute for Business and Professional Ethics, DePaul University]
